THE ANNUAL MIRROR
Published by
The Senior Class of 1933
Central High School
Lima, Ohio

Dedication

To the students of Central High School this book is lovingly dedicated.

To the fine boys and girls we have learned to know, love, and admire; to the friends who have shared our joys, our trials, and our innermost thoughts; to our fellow scholars, athletes, and actors (and we all are actors on this stage of Life), we humbly offer this, a mirror of your high school life, as a token of our respect, faith, and lasting affection.

Foreword

In the pages which follow, a book of remembrance is written. May it bring, in the mists of the future, the reincarnation of that elusive spirit called Youth, and a poignant and complete recollection of our fleeting years here.

And yet, may it not cause us to reflect over much on past events, but rather to direct our glances forward, to seek those ideals and goals toward which we are constantly striving.

It is with these aims that we tender to you your yearbook, The Annual Mirror of 1933.

Scenes

"Friends we have found, and ties
That time may tamper with, but never break—
Places made sweet by hours of work and play
Together—for friendship's sake."

"That which we are, we are;
One equal temper of heroic hearts,
Made weak by time and fate, but strong in will
To strive, to seek, to find, and not to yield."

We shall forget, but never this—

TO THE STUDENTS OF CENTRAL HIGH SCHOOL:

It is a pleasure for me to extend to you the greetings and the best wishes of the Board of Education.

I take note of the theme, "For Central, I Will", that you use in this publication. This implies, if I interpret your thought correctly, that your school has your full loyalty.

I would like to assume, and it would seem that I now have a reasonable basis for such an assumption, that this, your declaration of a particular and limited loyalty, is a prediction of a much needed attitude at the present time—an attitude that finds a greater than usual satisfaction in the promotion of the common good.

If this conclusion is true, and especially if the schools of Lima have helped you in building this attitude, I can assure you that the members of our Board of Education will feel fully repaid for the many hours that they have spent in their efforts to solve our many perplexing educational problems.

Central Sidelights

HISTORY

The funniest history period in 204? Well, it was probably the one when Mrs. Pence's class was mildly disrupted while trying to discover the guilty culprit who placed That Tack on Marvin Murray's seat! The kids (especially those who didn't know the lesson) hoped and prayed that it would take a long, long time to solve the mystery, but Karl Kuhlen finally 'fessed up, as everyone had expected! After all, it's much more exciting to watch someone nonchalantly sit on a tack than to study civil rights or the powers of Congress!

"A million Swedes ran through the weeds—" Ah, yes, you surely recognize Joe Doan's trademark! Poor Miss McClurg had to endure Joe's pet tricks the eighth period every day, as did the students sitting near young Mr. Doan, trying in vain to stifle continuous giggles at his stage-whisperings! Nevertheless, they did manage to learn, after nine months of hard labor, that General John Smith discovered America in 1776—or could they be wrong?

ANNUAL

Have you ever struggled valiantly and stubbornly to worm your way into the Annual office, through stacks of mounting board, piles of pictures, jars of evil-smelling glue, several staff members—and visitors? If so, you've found yourself in the midst of a lot of hustle and bustle, little oxygen, but plenty of hot air! Anything—and anyone—not discussed in that Annual office —well, they ain't no sech thing! "Muffin" Mayer and "Gabby" Cox admit they can't be beat for gossip, and when Sealts, DeVoe, and our revered (?) typist get into that small cubicle, there are few noisier places on earth! Just listen to a typical five-minute smattering of this and that:

"Max, where's that brush I just had?" . . . "Oh, hello, Merrill, where'd you come from?" . . . "Get out of that, Charles; you'll spoil it." . . . "My dear, isn't that picture of her simply awful?" . . . "Darling, do you still love me?" . . . "Oh, yes, boys, the big day is June 2. Don't miss it!" . . . "Say, where's that play write-up? My gosh, Miss Riggs, you must be sitting on it." . . . "Oh, yeah, wasn't her dress cute?" . . . "Somebody find out those football scores for me pronto." . . . "Good heavens, this picture doesn't fit. Now what'll we do?" . . . "Now look closely, girls, and see if you can guess this trick. You see, the matches are both marked now, but when I turn them over . . ."

If this Annual never gets to press, our loquacious visitors can claim the thanks!

ENGLISH

Dear pipples, if you like to have a screaming good time in school, you should've been in Miss Jamison's sixth period class. In 306 there was the awfullest crowd of Renowned Rogues ever assembled in one place at one time—Hollering, Lawton, Mitchell, Wemmer, Lewis, L. McElderry, and other lesser notables. Needless to say, those would have been forty-five minutes of the most hilarious confusion without Miss Jamison's characteristic "Now, I won't tell you again about this talking . . ."

With Lawton and Hollering in a huddle from which ensued snickerings just loud enough to make the whole class curious; with Lewis lounging luxuriously on two chairs, his seemingly endless legs finally coming to rest on the inevitable chalk-through; with Mitchell muttering his personal opinions on everything from the lesson to his "activities" and back to the lesson again, and with Brewster Taylor deeply slumbering away, you can see that pity exercised on poor Miss Jamison wouldn't be wasted!

However, our beloved department-head herself added hilarity to the general amusement, in such moments as the shirt-tucking-in episode or her falling experience! Ah, for those good ole days!

We hear Mrs. Rhonemus had her sixth period troubles, too, especially in trying to control Dick Ferguson's mania for putting windows up and down for no reason at all, and in trying to keep him away from Miss Deputy's plants. We never knew Dick was such an inveterate nature lover!

DETENTION

Ah, you Centralites, what is the most common phrase in circulation up at school? (And I don't mean "Aw nertz" either!) We'll wager that the number of people who haven't had this said to 'em could be put into an Austin with enough room left over for the unemployed! Sure, you've guessed it—"Two nights in detention, young man (or young lady)!"

How we all like to steer clear of room 204 after school, don't we? It's like jail—a lot nicer looking IN from the outside than looking OUT from the inside! There's always a varied crowd inside, and for every reason under the sun—shooting beans, chewing gum, snapping rubbers, writing notes, whispering, drawing pictures on the blackboard, or talking back to teacher. Oh, yes, we nearly forgot three very common causes of punishment—skipping, tardiness, or a note from "mother," written, for some strange reason, in Johnny Jones' or Mary Smith's handwriting!

We are merely recommending any of these various—and comparatively simple—methods in case you should have a strange (abnormal, to say the least) desire to see what 204 looks like on the inside some nice, warm, sunny day after school when you just don't feel like walking or riding around outdoors. (Should you ever feel like this, what we advise is that you RUN, not walk, to the nearest doctor!)

OFFICE

The other doom of Central culprits is that most famous of all six-letter words. How often this falls on one's ears—"One more thing like that, and you'll go straight to the office!" And doesn't it sound simply terrifying, like the gallows or the electric chair or something?

Having never been there (not YET, that is) for the purpose of being put on the carpet, we aren't very sure just what goes on behind that closed door, but we do have some pretty good ideas. "Anyhow, we know of only a few hardened sophisticates (like Hollering) who don't turn a sort of greenish shade when their path is forcibly directed toward that door marked "Principal's Office."

Of course, we did go to the office for other purposes (thank heavens), such as lost articles or asking Mary about something or other. But if—and when—we do go, we like to go on our own accord—we're funny that way. After all, it's a great deal more comfortable to walk into a police station and tell the desk sergeant you've lost your dog, or something, than to be taken there in a patrol wagon!

LIBRARY

The most hushed, austere place in the building? Ha, that's simple! It wouldn't require much gray matter on anybody's part to know that "them thar" adjectives apply to our own library. It's really funny how people shy away from that library when there's some report to be prepared, but when there's nothing to do—ah, that's a different matter! I wonder how many of us have "forged" library permits? How many times have we filled out an important-looking permit and written "history" or "French" as the purpose, and then sneaked around looking through magazines like little tots with picture books? Tsk, tsk!

The only joke we know on Miss Reilly is the following (and it really DID happen):

Miss Reilly (indignantly, to Sweet Young Thing combing her hair): "Where did you get your permit?"

Sweet Young Thing (all flustered and misunderstanding): "Oh, I got mine at that beauty shop on North Street; where'd you get yours?"

WEEKLY

There's no doubt in any Central student's or teacher's mind as to which is the noisiest room in the school. If we bothered to interview people on this matter, we know the answer every time would be "The Weekly Office", accompanied by black, villainous looks from the faculty members. Inhabited by several dozen famous noise-making animals such as ye editor, DeVoe, Lewis, Eckert, David, etc., it would be miraculous and no less should this corner of our beloved school remain silent for long!

For instance, the following is a mumble—I mean, jumble—of conversations (?) overheard one "make-up" (no we aren't speaking of cosmetics) evening:

"Chicken a la king!" . . . "Warren, we have something more to do around here." . . . "Find out the name of that dear lady who spoke." . . . "Betty, we want to use this in a feature. Is it a chicken? Some people say it's a duck." . . . "Why, sure it's a duck." . . . "Odor of dead cigars." . . . "Hey, will some of you people shut up?" . . . "Bad business!" . . . "One, two, three, amen! That's our Better Business Women's Bureau." . . .

"Mert needs a cough drop—
Mert needs a cough drop—
Mert needs a cough drop—

Oh, Miss Faris, have you a cough drop?" . . . "Hey, 'eye-ther' is an affectation." . . . "Don't be a 'yes' man—be a 'no' man." . . . "Merton, control your emotions." . . . "Oh, I can't take it!"

And so on, far, far into the night.

(In case you should wonder, we hereby inform the public that, despite extensive interest in Rushmore and the Better Business Women's Bureau, the revered staff did get the Weeklies published!)

SCIENCE

Have you often wondered this year why our "Cappy" has been looking so completely harassed and worn out? We'll give you three guesses—and if you're smart, you'll guess Joan Baxter every time! We hear that Scheuerman and the whole class nearly died laughing one day when he was leading a discussion on colloidal dispersions (whew! is that a mouthful?) and wound up by explaining gels. At that, Joan turned slowly around, and in the most serious, scornful tone of voice imaginable, said " Why, Mr. Scheuerman! Don't you know those aren't called gels? They're jellies."

When Cappy did get a moment's rest from Joan's poker-faced wise-cracks (if such they may be called), he found himself with a man-sized job on his hands trying to keep Helen Noonan separated from Ruth Brunk. Considering the fact that Helen paid Ruth on an average of forty-'leven visits every lab period, we can imagine just about how many experiments those two completed! If Mr. Scheuerman had a cage in his room, it wouldn't be hard to guess what (or whom) he'd put in it!

Of course, biology was as hysterical a course as usual. What with timid girls dissecting fishworms 'n' sech, and mischievous boys taking advantage of 'em, it's no wonder this science course is a riot from September to June!

We don't have much knowledge of physics as a science, but we have heard that a certain group of young men have decidedly increased their joke capacity, if not their knowledge of physics!

And so, all in all, this is our beloved school—not all work—not all play, but a great deal of experience—and fun, too, no matter what one hears to the contrary! Anyhow, we seniors really hate to leave; our sincere wish is that every senior class in the future may derive as much enjoyment and learning—not merely book-learning—from its high school days as we have.

—Bettye Cox

Calendar 1932-1933

SEPTEMBER

6 Offense: Loafing. Guilty or not guilty? Guilty.
Decision: Guilty of loafing in the first degree.
Sentence: Nine months imprisonment, at hard labor.

24 First football game, with Bluffton. We came out on top, 19-0. Look out ahead!

30 A speech in assembly by Samuel G. Wyer. Subject, "21 Ways Out of the Depression." Let's try one.

OCTOBER

1 What a game this one was. Mansfield tallied 3 points, and the good old Dragons came right back with 3 more points. Not bad.

7 Did we hate this! Turned back Dayton Kiser in a night game at Shawnee, 18-7. Whoops, my deah!

12 Help! Pandemonium has broken loose. The usual lost shirts, dignity, sore muscles, and good fun at the Annual Field Meet.

14 Oh, was this a blow to our pride! Springfield threw us all over the field in another night game, 20-6. Never mind, better luck next time.

20-21 George Washington Bicentennial film in assemblies. Aren't we glad we didn't live then?

21 "Cops"—Corridor and Traffic—hold party in the gym.

27 Mr. Offenhauer gives a speech to the kiddies in Junior High Assembly.

28 Ah! Bliss! No school—teachers at a convention in Toledo. Why can't this happen more often?

29 Another sock on the jaw, delivered by Dayton Steele in still another night game. Our boys did good work, though, considering that the mainstays were warming the bench, due to injuries. Score, 37-8. Ouch!

NOVEMBER

2 Another Lyceum number. The Welsh Singers. Weren't they cute? And that pianist—thrills and heart throbs!

4 Mr. Offenhauer honors senior high with his august presence in assembly. Three cheers!

4 Babies (freshmen) throw a party. Tsk, tsk!

5 Ah, out of the red again. Set Bellefontaine back, 13-7. We hated to do it, really.

7 Lobagola, the African bushman, in assembly. Aha, there, Mr. Rasputin, a rival!

10 The Cradle Roll has a party. Seventh graders to you, and you and you!

11 Armistice Day assemblies. Mr. Melvin C. Light in junior high. Mr. Walter S. Jackson in senior high.

11 Another one of those thrilling ties. And was it cold! We admire the fellas for sticking it out. Findlay 0, Central 0. All of that!

14-18 Safety first! Safety Week assemblies.

18 Juniors display dramatic talent with "Where There's a Will." Wasn't it good?

19 The Feminine Athletes have their party.

23 The Big Game Mass Meetings. And did we yell!

24 At last! Here's what we've been waiting for. The Big Game. We succeeded in holding South to a scoreless tie. Nice work, fellas, even if we didn't win.

29 Bugs! Brayton Eddy, naturalist, on Lyceum program.

DECEMBER

8 Craftsman Guild assembly for boys.

9 Stand by, everybody. The first basketball game, against Gomer. The score? Oh, yes, 28-15. Needless to say, in our favor.

10 Central shows fine promise in a second game, against Dola. Score, 22-16.

20 The Babies springing up again. Can't seem to keep 'em down. This time with the play, "Rescued by Radio."

22-23 Christmas assemblies.

22 Thrilling game against Ashland. Closer than the proverbial Scotsman, 24-23.

December 24 to January 3—Paroled!

30 Monroeville, Indiana, proved to be Central's next victim. We walked over them with a score of 54-24. What's that about Indiana basketball?

JANUARY

8 Springfield added insult to injury by giving us our first defeat, 26-23.

6 A thrilling overtime game with Findlay, score 21-20 in their favor. Courage, men!

12 Our orators orate against Liberty Center and Marion. Got off to a good start by defeating both.

14 It's getting to be a habit. Let's break it. Hamilton handed us another heartbreaking defeat, 25-24. We can't allow this.

16-19 Exams! Genius is not appreciated.

19 Sweet relief! The Petrie Quintet entertains at another Lyceum program.

20 South came over and trounced us, 20-18. It's just one of those things.

26 Debaters debate against Bluffton and Gibsonburg. Nice going, gang. Keep up the good work.

27 Oh! Are our faces red! Hold up thy head, Central, march on! Toledo Woodward showed us how, with the score of 40-22. Ah-wah!

FEBRUARY

4 Cast off the black crepe! Brent returns to the line-up. Whoopee! Van Wert learned about basketball from us, to the tune of 25-10.

9 Can our debaters talk? Tough luck, Fostoria, Upper Sandusky. District Champions! Ahem!

10 Lancaster was taken for a ride by the rejuvenated Dragons, 27-12.

11 What, again? Yes, sad to relate. Portsmouth left us by the wayside, 30-21.

14 Captain F. H. Holmes talked to boys on Citizens' Military Training Camp.

17 An eye for a tooth, and a tooth for an eye. Is revenge sweet? Ah! The South Tigers crawled—or, rather, ran—back to their lair. Score, 24-22.

22 Eureka! (singers)—Lyceum course.

22 Georgie was all right! No school.

24 The second and third stringers edged out Ada, 19-18, in last season game. Nice goin', gang.

28 Nuts to you, "The Nut Farm" to the Masqueraders.

MARCH

2 Professor Breese, of Wittenberg, talks in senior assembly.

2 The negative debate team lost to Columbus East. Tough luck, fellas. We should have got to the finals, though.

2 The big Red and Green team walloped Wapakoneta, 33-22, at the Sectional Tournament at Ada. Too bad, Wapak.

3 Central put Ada in its place a second time, with the score, 35-20.

4 The Central-Upper Sandusky game provided little interest, as we set them back, 36-10. Some style to us! Sectional champions! We'll be seeing you!

9 Alas, woe is us! Pull down the flag. Toledo Scott eliminated us at the District Tournament, 24-18. Too bad, fellas. Wait'll next year, we'll show 'em!

22 I thought I would die—at the Faculty-Varsity game. It was just too bad for the faculty. They should eat more "Pep." Wasn't Mr. Overholser cute?

24 Dr. Robert Williams, president of Ohio Northern University, spoke in senior assembly.

24 Central looked like a sudden plague had struck it. All—or practically all—of the students were at Marion at the instrumental eisteddfod.

24 Didn't you love the bashful and embarrassed expressions on the faces of "Cappy's" boys? And the purty letters?

27-31 "Clean Speech, Clean Sportsmanship, Clean Scholarship, Clean Habits." Have you lived up to them?

APRIL

27 Coach Crisler, of Princeton. More thrills for the boys.

28 Do, re, mi—tra, la, la! Oh, don't be alarmed; it's only the singers tuning up for the Eisteddfod!

MAY

10 What? The Babies again! Junior High Cantata.

19 The seniors live up to their reputation of always doing something different by putting on "The Passing of the Third Floor Back." Did you like it?

JUNE

5-6-7 Outside attractions scorned. Interior concentrating felt, but not seen.

7 Seniors have their last fling as seniors—wasn't the prom grand?

The Class of 1933

Senior Class History

ONE memorable day in September, approximately four years ago, our senior class first entered the portals of Central High School. From that time on, the class of nineteen hundred and thirty-three has rapidly gained fame and recognition, not only in scholarship activities (in which it has always ranked among the highest), but also in athletics, dramatics, debate, and music.

For our freshman year we elected as class officers, Franklin Young, president; Bruce Waggoner, vice president; Mary Cutter, secretary, and Martha Jackson, treasurer. Our representatives on the Student Council were Coit Black and Tom Taylor. Miss Reid, as class advisor, capably guided us through the troubles and difficulties which constitute the first year of high school.

Returning to school the next fall one step nearer our goal, we again selected Franklin Young as president of our group; James Brentlinger as vice president; Mary Cutter as secretary, and Helen Anne Gooding as treasurer. Joan Baxter, Coit Black, Tom Taylor, and Merton Sealts were named members of the Student Council. Coit Black was also elected head boy cheerleader, which was quite an unusual honor for a sophomore. Charles Fly, another cheerleader, was also a member of our class. In the Troubadourian play, "The Call of the Banshee", which will be well remembered by the student body for the element of weirdness it created, Martha Jackson, Charles Condit, Pauline Jones, and Selma Mervis were the sophomore members of the cast. Mary Cutter and Franklin Young played the leads in "Wild Ginger", another play which was presented by the Masqueraders' club. Our class supervisor, Miss Howey, faithfully helped us throughout the year.

With two years of noteworthy achievements behind us, we then returned to the dear old Alma Mater as upperclassmen and once more chose Franklin Young, president; James Brentlinger, vice president; Mary Cutter, secretary, and Martha Jackson, treasurer. As our Student Council representatives we elected, in addition to the ones previously named, Kent Leach and Billy Barndt.

In athletics, James Brentlinger, although only a junior, was chosen captain of both the basketball and football teams, which was indeed an unusual honor.

Members of the class who made the debating squad were Mary Cutter, Kent Leach, Warren Lewis, John Tillotson, and Billy Barndt.

One of the outstanding dramatic successes of the year was "The Whippersnappers," a play presented by the junior class. Members of the cast were Marjorie Zimmerman, Charles Condit, Harry Hadsell, Mary Cutter, Kathryn Benedict, Merrill DeVoe, Bud Derbyshire, Martha Jackson, Billy Barndt, Paul Crosser, Merton Sealts, and Franklin Young.

At the close of the year the Junior Hop was given at Shawnee Country

Club in honor of the departing seniors. To Miss Jones, our councilor, we are very grateful for the manner in which she advised us during the year.

Then with our goal at last in sight after three years of hard labor and troubles (at least we seniors think so!), we entered upon our final year of high school.

For this all-important year we named as our class officers Franklin Young, president; James Brentlinger, vice president; Mary Cutter, secretary, and Merrill DeVoe, treasurer.

Kent Leach, Coit Black, Bettye Cox, Jo Steiner, Martha Jackson, John Bentz, Merton Sealts, and Bill Barndt were elected as representatives on the Student Council.

The following senior committees were chosen by Franklin Young with the help of Miss McClurg, our supervisor: general, Bettye Cox, John Lowry, Annette Vincent, John Bentz, and Tom Taylor; memorial, Charles Condit, Martha Jackson, and Kent Leach; graduation announcements, Gwendolyn King, George CaJacob, Maxine Mayer, James Porter, Marie Weber, and John Tillotson; senior prom, Dick Hardy, Robert Blose, Helen Noonan, Joan Baxter, and John Mitchell.

Many senior students held positions on the staffs of the Weekly and Annual Mirrors. Members of the Weekly Mirror staff were Merton Sealts, Jo Steiner, Anna Katherine Marshall, Charles Condit, Bettye Cox, John Kirk, Merrill DeVoe, Dorothy James, and Warren Lewis. On the Annual staff were Bettye Cox, William Barndt, Martha Jackson, Carolyn Wylie, Margaret Steiner, Marjorie Zimmerman, Annette Vincent, Kathryn Benedict, Maxine Mayer, Charles Condit, Helen Fogelgren, Mary Cutter, and Mary Elizabeth Claypoole.

Senior honor students were Coyita Armstrong, Inez Basinger, Jean Bowman, Juanita Byerly, Betty Kelchner, Mary Elizabeth MacLaughlin, Bettye Cox, Margaret Merritt, Mary Lou Murphy, Anna Silberman, Merton Sealts, Lloyd Reid, Kent Leach, Billy Barndt, Kathryn Benedict, Gwen King, Anna Kathryn Marshall, Helen Fogelgren, Evelyn Stover, Charles Condit, Joe Honegger, Margaret Leech, Martha Jackson, and Mary Hover.

The senior play, "The Passing of the Third Floor Back", was presented before a large number of students and adults. Members of the cast included Pauline Jones, Mary Cutter, Kathryn Feeney, Helen Noonan, Virginia Bower, Martha Jackson, Merton Sealts, Merrill DeVoe, John Tillotson, Paul Crosser, George CaJacob, and Charles Condit.

To Miss McClurg we are exceedingly grateful for the helpful advice she gave to us during our year in her home room.

—MARGARET STEINER.

Juniors

Junior Class History

AFTER several years of hard work and valiant efforts, the students of the class of '34 have at last attained the distinction of being upperclassmen. In their first year of high school, they elected as class officers Kade Wilkinson, president; Paul Strange, vice president; Barbara Claypoole, secretary, and William Guyton, treasurer. Members on the Student Council were Mary McKee and Bill Vincent. Miss Reed ably guided the class throughout the year.

Casting aside the timid, submissive air which all freshmen have (or at least should have!), they returned to school the following fall a trifle more self-confident. For their class officers they chose Kade Wilkinson, president; Mary McKee, vice president; Miriam Wise, secretary, and Gene Heil, treasurer. Student Council representatives were Bill Vincent, Paul Strange, Barbara Claypoole, and Nancy Hover.

While still sophomores, both Mary McKee and Kathryn Swaney were elected as members of the cheerleading squad.

Then in the fall of 1932, a group of elated "youngsters" (with a very recently acquired air of nonchalance!) entered the halls of Central feeling rather proud, we imagine, of their well earned promotion to the ranks of that staid and dignified body, the upperclassmen.

To pilot them through the year they chose Gene Heil as president; Mary Margaret Scheid as vice president; Mary McKee as secretary, and Betty Euller as treasurer. Chosen as their representatives on the Student Council were Jo Gordon, Barbara Claypoole, Bill Vincent, Claire Stump, Charles Eckert, and Nancy Hover.

The junior play, "Where There's a Will", presented before a large audience, was a great success. Members of the cast included Kathryn Kelly, Gene Heil, George Countryman, Carmen Stultz, Kathryn Fly, Barbara Claypoole, Charles Eckert, Robert Cupp, Eleanor Schrenk, Anne Brazelton, Frederick Morley, James Miller, and Jo Gordon.

Eleventh year students who have been on the honor roll nearly every time are Alene Craun, Nancy Hover, Ruth Saylor, Irene Simmons, Julianne Bussert, Hannah Owen, Anne Brazelton, Robert Bradley, Claude Fisher, Mary Porter, Dora Shutt, George Countryman, Jean Chiles, Ruth Rose, Mary David, Gene Heil, Miriam Joseph, and Elizabeth Baxter.

Students of this class have also entered into the many other activities at Central, including debate, athletics, and journalism.

As their class advisor, Miss Jones very capably supervised the group throughout this altogether successful year.

Sophomores

Sophomore Class History

In their first year of high school, they elected as class officers Charles Crosser, president; Eugene Bessire, vice president; Betty Watson, secretary, and Wilbur Miller, treasurer. Representatives from the class for the Student Council were Hilda Winemiller and Robert Light. Miss Reed very capably advised the class throughout the year.

At the inter-class track meet which was held in the spring out at College Field, the sophomores, captained by Charles Crosser, placed second.

Members of the class who were prominent in dramatics this year were Robert Light, Frances Ann Harvey, Robert Atkinson, Carolyn Means, Bill Mereness, and Eugene Bessire.

Sophomore boys who went out for football included Don Paul, Gilbert Lewis, Leonard Lewis, George Ewing, Bill Merritt, Bob Snyder, Don Snyder, John Wolfe, Dick Olney, Paul Kies, Olen Grouver, and John Hunter. On the basketball team from the class of '35 were Esker Brown, Gilbert Lewis, Don Paul, and Robert Rutter.

In other extra-curricular activities such as debate, journalism, clubs, and music, the students have also participated extensively and enthusiastically.

As sophomore class advisor Miss Howey gave her willing support and advice whenever it was needed.

Freshmen

Freshman Class History

HAVE you noticed the amazing lack of submissiveness in our green (?) freshmen this year? At least, we heard many, many remarks to the effect that "there isn't such a thing as a meek freshman any more", when the Who's Who contest rolled around! Somehow, our freshmen seem to be suddenly grown up—and there are a great many complaints from supercilious upperclassmen, too!

However that may be, on the sixth of last September approximately three hundred of them began over-running our sacred front steps and getting underfoot in the corridors. On this momentous day there began to unfold for them four years of precious experience— fun and trouble, joy and sorrow, realization and disappointment, defeat and triumph.

The freshman class was skillfully guided throughout the year by Forest Moor, president; William Larsen, vice president; Jean Morley, secretary, and Clarence Frey, treasurer, while the student council members were Robert Offenhauer and Carlton Asher.

Four freshmen gained the distinction of appearing in the annual Masqueraders' play. Grace Roberts, Jean Ann O'Connor, Don Roberson, and Robert Hay carried their roles remarkably well.

Betty Freshwater, Helene Stonehill, Coy Pepple, William Larsen, Carlton Asher, Marshall Rodgers, Tom Gregg, and Richard Reid work diligently so that Central could have a bi-weekly Mirror, while Marguerite Boyd, Ann Gordon, and Mary Mack were members of the Annual Mirror staff.

Cheerleaders from the freshman class were Jean Morley and Dick McCormick, who very ably performed their duties of pepping up the student body at the football and basketball games.

Those very active in both fall and winter sports were Pauline Koch, Rosella Haspel, Betty Freshwater, Helene Stonehill, Forest Moor, and Walter Manley.

Sponsored by the student council, the freshman class party, held November 4, was an outstanding social event of the year.

Freshmen honor students who received perfect marks nearly every estimate were Mary Ann Dawe, Shirley Kinzer, Forest Moor, Jack Rapp, Marshall Rodgers, Kathleen Baxter, Margaret Schnabel, Jean Yazel, William Larsen, Mary Bender, Betty Freshwater, Helene Stonehill, Jean Ann O'Connor, Robert Offenhauer, Grace Roberts, Ellen Benner, Robert Rohn, Harriet Ault, Dorothy Kilgore, Don Roberson, John Walters, and Ann Calvert.

The class of '36 has maintained high standards in all of Central's activities. May it continue its fine record of achievement, making its ideals higher and its ambitions greater at each step along the way to success and happiness.

Junior High History

REMEMBER how thrilled you were when you entered Central Junior High? Didn't you feel really "grown-up" and just awfully big? No matter how sophisticated a student may seem now, we're willing to wager that he was at least slightly jubilant over his first day up here in the seventh grade. It seemed such a jump from grade school!

The enrollment in Central Junior High school, composed of both the seventh and eighth grades, has increased by leaps and bounds until now it comprises approximately seven hundred and twenty students. In charge of the junior high is Mr. C. C. Romaker, assistant principal at Central, and Misses Ruth Reed and Edna McPheron, supervisors of the seventh and eighth grades.

Elected by their seventh grade classmates to direct them for the year were Gene Miller, president; Margery Leach, vice president; Rosemary Landis, secretary, and Robert Johnson, treasurer.

The eighth grade officers were Clifford Solt, chosen president; Nelda Fowler, vice president; Ann Applas, secretary, and Jack Hilgendorf, treasurer.

Richard Hayes and Dick Creviston ably represented their grades in the student council.

And didn't we all like the play given instead of the annual operetta? The young players showed unusual ability in their splendid presentation of "Rescue by Radio", which was both thrilling and humorous.

Junior High Night on January 27 was a special event of the year. Basketball games were the main feature of the evening, displaying the athletic skill of these junior high boys who had a very successful basketball season, scoring one hundred and fifty-eight points as compared with their opponents total of one hundred and thirty-one.

The high scholastic standards of our junior high were ably upheld this year, these two grades being represented each estimate by an unusually large number of honor students. Among these were the following: Emma Jane Hires, Rosemary Landis, Betty Benedict, Jane Parent, Robert Whittington, Ann Jennings, Billie Ford, Kent Klay, Charles Riebesell, William Furnish, George Dawe, Arthur Trachsel, Margery Leach, Clara Creviston, Carroll Lewis, Ralph Edelman, George King, Betty Leffler, Waldon Mertz, Helen Holmes, Marilyn Stives, Beatrice Norton, Mary Catherine Basinger, Ruth Reid, Verla Myers, Ruthella Dulin, Joanne Bessire, Betty Davidian, Robert Berger, Jack Mericle, Richard Creviston, Charles Thompson, Leon Claasen, and Marie Hemler.

May the classes of '37 and '38 continue the fine record they have begun and enjoy the rest of their school days as much as they have enjoyed this past year.

Coaches

CENTRAL'S extensive 1932-33 sports schedule was carried out very successfully, due, in a large measure, to the leadership of Coaches C. C. Steward, H. W. Scheuerman, B. W. Hughes, and F. C. Overholser. Under the direction of these four, the athletic department finished the season with a winning average well over the five hundred per cent mark.

In his first year as varsity football mentor, Mr. Steward well earned the title of "Man of Many Duties." After piloting the football squad to four wins and three ties in nine games, he coached the reserve cage team, which was defeated only twice during the season. Both setbacks came from the South High Cubs after thrilling games. In the spring, Mr. Steward coached a winning baseball team.

Mr. Steward was also in charge of the physical education department, which sponsored interclass and intramural volleyball and basketball.

Immediately following the football season, Mr. Scheuerman started basketball, leading the Dragon five to its fourth consecutive sectional basketball title. "Cappy" also coached the cross-country team.

Mr. Hughes, like Mr. Steward, experienced his first year as a varsity coach and has firmly entrenched himself in the hearts of Central athletes and fans. Coach of the varsity swimming and track teams, Mr. Hughes never failed to do his bit by the players, often doing part of the manager's work so that the athletes would not be hampered during their training. Mr. Hughes also directed the junior high physical education department.

Mr. Overholser, freshman football and basketball coach, has done much to arouse the interest of the first year men in athletics. The success of future Central teams depends greatly on the athletes being developed by Mr. Overholser.

Managers

WHEN the football, basketball, track, swimming, and baseball men assemble on the stage in the auditorium to receive their awards, the managers are always there with them. Often those in the audience begrudge the manager his letter, seeing only the trips and free meals he gets. These skeptical students, however, have only to ask the coach or the players themselves about the many endless tasks of the manager to rid themselves of this erroneous idea.

Numbered among the many duties of a manager are the following: checking and rechecking equipment, keeping the dressing rooms clean, rubbing down players, and drying equipment. On a road trip, the manager must have all equipment packed before the team leaves, and on the return must see to it that no towels or suits are missing.

Probably the football manager has the least desired job in Central athletics. Robert Scheufler, serving as head football manager this year, was well fitted for the job, having worked the two preceding years as assistant. Bob was ably assisted by Ernest Davenport, Robert Burns, and Edward Jackson.

Central athletic managers have always been picked from the assistants of the year before, but this year, due to the fact that there were no returning assistants from last year, Robert Neumeier, whom the players affectionately called "Gogglemeier", was chosen head basketball manager and served very efficiently. Kade Wilkinson was his assistant.

George CaJacob worked hard as swimming manager this year to earn the first "C" ever awarded by Central to a swimming team manager.

Clarke Shumate and Dale Gross were co-track managers, while Herbert Lanker served as baseball manager last season. All three capably performed their many duties.

Cheerleaders

"ONE, TWO, THREE!" It's just another of those Central cheers, led by our peppy cheerleaders, rolling out over the gridiron, gay with color, one snappy, exciting day last fall. Or perhaps it issued forth at a basketball game in a tense and exciting moment when our players needed a bit of encouragement. Anyhow, wherever the place, whatever the time, our cheerleaders were always ready. In our turn, let's give them a rousing cheer for their good work!

Central's enthusiastic student body has supported its athletes and cheerleaders so well that it has gained the reputation of having one of the best displays of clean sportsmanship of the schools of Ohio. How proud we students feel of that!

But now, let's bring forth these up-and-coming boys and girls who deserve so much support and commendation for their splendid work.

Bob Atkinson, he of the famous grin, was head cheerleader this year, and is known as Central's peppiest student. Quite a reputation, especially for just a sophomore!

Mary McKee, who was head girl cheerleader this year, seems to get better and better all the time. You'll be seeing more of her, Centralites!

Charles Fly, who has been a splendid cheerleader for four years, seemed to delight in rousing peppy cheers from Centralites. Unfortunately, he's a senior. We'll miss you, Charlie!

Kathryn Swaney, Pat, to you, was always right there, cheering with all her might. We're looking for you next year, Patty!

Dick McCormick was only a frosh—and a small one, at that!—but, oh, what power he had!

Jean Morley, another freshman, has three years ahead of her in which to arouse enthusiasm with her cheers as she did this year.

Football Lettermen

SAM BAMBALOFF gave a great exhibition, playing that smashing type of tackle which waits for no man. His spirit was great. We hope the future will bring us another tackle like genial Sam.

JACK BERMAN, as guard this year, broke through the opponent's line time after time with that well-known submarine method of his, to stop the ball-carrier for a big loss.

BOB BLOSE developed into one of the best punters Central has had for years, and steadily improved through the season. Always working hard, Bob was one of our most consistent backfield performers.

CHARLES BODIKER, guard, was one of the most dependable linemen on the team. A hard worker and enthusiastic player, he was a smooth performer on both the offense and defense.

JAMES BRENTLINGER, captain, was one of the greatest halfbacks, offensively and defensively, ever to wear the red and green. Always sincere in every effort, and playing with that burning desire to win, Jimmie was a truly great football player.

NORMAN BRYAN, halfback, was a dangerous man for the opponents to stop because of his elusiveness and speed in carrying the ball and throwing forward passes.

D. LANKER shared the duty of punting, and his ball-carrying gained us many yards. His left-handed passing was nothing short of sensational for its accuracy.

H. LANKER, guard, had that "never die" fighting spirit which not only made him one of our most valuable linemen, but also inspired the other players.

Football Lettermen

CLINTON LAY, quarterback, always gave his best efforts and worked for the success of the team. His keen interest and knowledge of the game made Clint a very valuable leader and field general.

JOHN LOWRY'S fighting spirit at guard was a great factor in our success. His ability to analyze the opponents' plays was uncanny. We'll sure miss "Chink" and his million-dollar smile.

STANLEY LYTLE, tackle, played the waiting type of tackle, but it was like hitting a stone wall to get through Stan's position. Ask the man who knows!

BOB MACK'S blocking on the offense was exceptionally effective, while his tackling on the defense stopped the opponents in their tracks. Bob's work and spirit were appreciated to the utmost.

LLOYD REID, end, was a valuable man at blocking kicks, going down on punts, and receiving forward passes. Lloyd always worked hard and did his best to bring victory for Central.

TOM TAYLOR'S all around play in his new position of end this year was marvelous. The opponents soon learned better than to attempt going around Tommy's end. He was also one of Central's greatest forward-pass receivers.

KADE WILKINSON'S chief duty this year in the backfield was that of a blocking half, which he performed in a very creditable manner.

FRANKLIN YOUNG'S passing, coupled with his exceptional speed and aggressiveness, made him a very valuable center on both offense and defense. We'll always remember Frankie for that big smile of determination!

Thanksgiving Game

OLD Man Weather was a bit more generous last Thanksgiving than he had been in two or three previous years, but his generosity was not ultra-prolific as he spread a mantle of mud and water over the College Field as his contribution to the fourteenth annual Turkey Day game. The melee went into the books as the second scoreless tie played by South and Central since the inauguration of the series in 1919.

The vaunted Central overhead attack was conspicuous by its absence due to the soggy condition of the field, while the widely heralded South running game, led by Shafer, Curry, and others, was held at bay by a combination of the mud and the alert Dragon forward wall.

Each team failed to capitalize on its lone scoring opportunity, South's coming in the second period and Central's in the fourth.

In the waning minutes of the first half, the Bengals advanced deeply into Central's territory. Held for three downs on the three-yard strip, they attempted a goal from the field, but an avalanche of Central linemen swept through to beat down the kick as well as the Tigers' hopes.

Central's chance came in the final quarter when Brentlinger dodged his way to the four-yard line after a sensational seventeen-yard excursion. Three thrusts at the line netted nothing, and the Dragons elicited to pass. The ball was whipped to Taylor, who could do no more than get his finger-tips on the oval. It was simply not to be.

Basketball Lettermen

BOB BLOSE—big, aggressive, and imperturbable, led the Dragons in scoring last season, and was especially proficient in following-in shots. His work on the defense was also scintillating.

JAMES BRENTLINGER, captain, who is a four letter man in three sports, possesses the sterling attributes of a great leader—calmness and deliberateness—and was chiefly responsible for the fine record compiled by the Scheuermanites last season.

ESKER BROWN gives promise of becoming one of Central's truly great. A fine knowledge of the game, coupled with skill and confidence, makes Esker a really excellent player.

HARVEY JOHNSON, standing but five feet seven, had little difficulty in stopping the biggest of opponents. "Diminutive, but dependable" should be the label attached to Harvey!

GIB LEWIS played guard and pivot positions and did a good job in both spots. He was exceptionally dangerous with his left-handed tosses, which fooled every center he ran us against.

JOHN LOWRY, the old pepper-box himself! Vivacious and somewhat facetious, John acquitted himself in fine style whenever given the chance, his work on the defense being especially noteworthy.

DON PAUL always succeeded in turning in a fast, steady performance. His passing was responsible for numerous Central tallies.

LLOYD REID, especially good at follow-in shots, turned in his most brilliant performance in the Ashland game, holding Thomas, 1932 all-state center, to three baskets.

BOB RUTTER, a clever, adroit player, was very dangerous on the offense, although he played guard position. Bob had little chance to show his wares, but played splendidly every time.

HAROLD ZIEGENBUSH, fast, clever, and possessing an uncanny eye for the mesh, broke into the varsity lineup for the first time in the sectional tournament, and was a constant menace to every team he faced.

Basketball

TWELVE victories and seven defeats—perhaps not the best record ever compiled by a Central basketball team, but one which local followers can point to with pride. The record reveals that the Red and Green was an in and out team, but the combination which Scheuerman placed on the floor near the end of the campaign played a consistent brand of ball.

Critics shook their heads pessimistically when they saw Coach Scheuerman's comparatively inexperienced team scheduled to stack up against unusually strong aggregations, but "Cappy" went to work with the sole purpose of showing the experts how wrong they were.

Central inaugurated its 1932-33 season with a double victory over Gomer and Dola. A decisive victory over Galion followed, and Ashland was subdued in a thrilling encounter. Monroeville then felt the fury of the Dragon attack and bowed before an overwhelming score.

Then the Scheuermanites embarked upon a losing streak which was destined not to terminate until the string reached five games. Springfield inflicted the first defeat by a three point margin; Hamilton gained its victory by a point; Findlay, after an uphill fight, won out in an overtime period; South came up from behind to win by a basket, while Toledo Woodward, with a brilliant last quarter rally, subdued the Centralites by a large score.

With a rejuvenated lineup, the Red and Green resumed its winning way against Van Wert. Then came the swing through southern Ohio, in which the Dragons broke even with Lancaster and Portsmouth, the victory being registered over the former team.

Returning to Lima, Central revenged its earlier defeat by humbling South, and the second team, playing its last regularly scheduled game of the season, won an exciting victory over Ada.

Central swept through the sectional tourney at Ada, winning over Wapak, Ada, and Upper Sandusky in that order. In the district meet at Findlay, the Dragons were eliminated in the first round by Toledo Scott. Thus another Central team passed into oblivion as far as actual play was concerned—but its deeds will never pass into the realm of forgotten things.

Swimming

SWIMMING opened this season for the second year as a major sport, with only one veteran back. The season could not be termed successful by looking only at win and loss columns because, through lack of finances, the swimmers had but three meets. However, the team placed two men in the district meet held at Toledo, in which they scored fourth place.

At the state meet held in the new Natatorium of Ohio State University, Franklin Young came through with a first in the back stroke for the second consecutive year. Cleveland Heights again successfully defended its state championship title, and Central took fifth place.

In the interclass meets the seniors placed first; juniors, second; sophomores, third, and freshmen, fourth.

In two meets with Toledo Waite, the Toledoans outclassed the Central team each time, the scores being 51-24, and 38-32. Fort Wayne defeated our swimmers 38-32 in a meet there.

The lettermen of this year's squad were Franklin Young, Paul Tuttle, Bob Snyder, and George CaJacob, manager. Numerals were given to Michael Ayres, Paul Kies, Bill Vincent, David Barnhardt, Robert McKinley, John Daniels, Birger Areskog, and Jack Schoonover. With this group of men back next year, a more successful season can be hoped for.

Cross-Country Track Team

DESPITE the fact that it was inaugurated on the Central sports schedule but three years ago, cross-country track is rapidly asserting itself as a prominent activity. Each succeeding year finds more men out for the sport, and, if this spirit continues in the future, Central will be represented by some mighty fine runners.

This year's record, unsuccessful from the standpoint of victories, is not out-standing for the simple reason that there was but one veteran on the team.

In a triangular meet at Mansfield, October 1, the more experienced Mansfield harriers scored seventeen points; Wooster, with fifty-seven points, placed second; and Central with sixty-five points, came in a close third. On October 7, the Dragons met Lima South, only to be defeated 21-34. South also won the dual meet on October 22, 25-36.

Piqua completely outclassed both South and Central in another triangular meet held October 14, scoring twenty-one points for an easy victory. The two Lima teams failed to qualify.

John Kirk was the sole letter earner, while Stanley Fisher, Russell Dickson, Richard Rower, Richard Miller, Harold Mousa, Clifford Early, and Raymond Rimer received numerals.

Dickson, Mousa, Miller, and Rower form the nucleus around which Coach Scheuerman hopes to build a more successful team next fall.

—JOE DOAN

Baseball

FOR five years now, Jack Steward has been coaching Central baseball nines, and under his capable tutelage they have never finished a season under the .500 mark. Last year's squad was no exception, as it won ten games in thirteen starts.

Shutout victories were registered over Waynesfield and Cridersville, while even splits were gained with South and Vaughnsville. Other teams that fell before the Central attack were Defiance, Harrod, Elida, and Delphos Jefferson.

Letters were awarded to Basil Van Horn and Rex Jones, catchers; Bill Scott, Paul Hughes, Gene Laibe and James Ford, all infielders; and to outfielders Lytle, Faurot, Koch, and Heath. Pitchers who were rewarded were Coulter, Lewis, and "Sad Sam" Judkins. Phil Kline, student manager, also received the coveted "C".

Lettermen back this year include Coulter and G. Lewis, pitchers, and Bus Lytle, outfielder. Others who are working for a place on the Dragon nine are Ziegenbush, Bayley, and Mox on the mound, and Thompson, Dickson, Van Buskirk, and Solomon, catchers.

Infielders who will probably see action during the season include Pape, Paul, and W. Lewis at first base; Griffo and Horine at second; Ford, Rutter, and Stump at shortstop, and Moore and Wilkinson at third. Outfielders include Bambaloff, Lytle, Faze, Kemp, and Oen.

Coach Steward is banking on these boys to give Central a winning team this season.

Track

Experiencing one of the most successful seasons in history, the Central track team of 1932 won five of six dual meets in which it participated, and captured first place in a five-way meet at Findlay. The lone defeat was suffered at the hands of the Toledo Waite tracksters, while victories were registered over Findlay, Ada, Sidney, South, and Pandora.

Many brilliant track and field stars were uncovered by Coach Umbreit, who, incidentally, was coaching his last sport at Central.

Among those returning this year were Young, Brentlinger, Black, Kirk, Reid, Crosser, Neely, and Leach.

We're wishing the tracksters as much success this season as last.

THE Girls' Athletic Association, organized for the purpose of promoting girls' athletics, is celebrating its eighth anniversary this year, having been established in 1925 by Mrs. White.

The organization sponsors basketball, volleyball, baseball, tennis, shuffleboard, deck tennis, skill tests, track and field meets, hikes, hay-rack rides, and sleigh, skating, and swimming parties, under the supervision of Miss Marie McBride, girls' physical education instructor.

Letters are awarded to junior and senior members who have earned 1200 points. Any member with 600 points is awarded a numeral, while a pin is given to the graduating "C" girl, who is elected annually on the basis of sportsmanship, scholarship, spirit, skill, and cooperation. Letters which would have been awarded last spring were given this winter, due to the shortened school term last year. The girls who received letters are Jean Arras, Jeanette Bennett, Inez Luke, and Rhea Kemp.

MARTHA JACKSON - - - - - - - - - Clerk

WITH its many unprecedented accomplishments, the Student Council of Central High school has this year acquired a place of recognized and paramount importance among both the faculty and student body.

To promote in all ways the best interests of the school, the Council supervised the street and corridor patrols, formulated assembly programs, co-operated with The Mirror in carrying on Maidens' Chance Week and the Who's Who contest, authorized club charters, established a lost and found exchange, organized a system of courtesy monitors, planned and supervised Field Day, took charge of hall bulletin boards, sponsored class parties, controlled class and council elections, and published a handbook for the convenience of every Central student.

Furthermore, the Council took action on two vitally important measures by providing for the initiation and maintenance of school dances at Central, and in working out details whereby an honor study hall can be started at the beginning of next year.

Mr. Crites, faculty supervisor of the Council, has done much to make the organization an effective administration body in the school.

The Council members fervently hope that in the future Central will come more and more to realize and appreciate the great importance of student government and participation in all activities.

Annual Mirror

IF we, the editors, have been able to capture in this book the spirit of that elusive thing called youth; if we have been able to insure vivid recollections of these fleeting years here when our readers shall look through these pages in years to come; if we have been able to present a true and accurate record of our high school days, then we shall feel amply rewarded for the infinite amount of time, thought, and work we have spent on this book.

Few people realize the amount of hard work necessary to publish a yearbook. Except for staff members and a very few others, the boys and girls take the yearbook as a matter of fact. They think it is compiled and edited by some magic method, wherein lies no labor, no worry, no self-sacrifice. On the contrary, it is a real task, one demanding the utmost in time and effort, for it must be accurate, truthful, appropriate, attractive (and trying to please everyone is the most difficult and impossible task of all), and inexpensive—at least, such it had to be this year. Planning one's ideal yearbook is a matter quite different from paying for it! We hope that our readers will bear this fact in mind when tempted to criticize.

The helpful cooperation we have received on every hand has been deeply appreciated; without this cooperation the yearbook would be an impossibility. The valuable aid rendered by our advisors has been gratefully received, we assure you.

Weekly Mirror

A FIRST CLASS high school paper! At the time this is written, information has just come that the Journalism Association of Ohio High Schools has awarded The Mirror a first class honor rating among high school publications of the state. This signifies an EXCELLENT paper.

The urge to "toot your own horn" is rather strong when the trials and tribulations of a year's work are rewarded by such an honor, especially because we have constantly tried to keep the staff—and staff names—strictly in the background. In addition, we have inaugurated a new headline schedule and style sheet, and have sought for improvement in make-up, quality of writing, news coverage, and general interest value.

Our editorial page has been modified in appearance and in content, and (we hope) increased in value. We have tried to provide readable editorials and to present school-wide news in a fair, unbiased, interesting way, giving credit where credit is due. The cooperation of the staff, the faculty, the student body, and local merchants has been greatly appreciated, we assure you.

Unfortunately, the well-known depression has compelled retrenchment in some respects, but we have sought to make up for the decreased number of issues by an increase in quality of material. The efforts of our hard-working business staff, too often overlooked, have been untiring.

To our sympathetic advisors, Mr. Heffner and Miss Jamison, goes much of the credit for the year's achievement. We are deeply grateful for their aid and advice.

Quill and Scroll

I. H. S. H. S. J. Do you know what those mystic letters stand for? If you're really interested, they signify the International Honorary Society for High School Journalists. That's our Quill and Scroll. Just as the letters say, it is an international society, of which Central has the honor of being a member—the first member in the state of Ohio. You didn't know, did you, that Central had such distinction? We have, and we should be very proud of our Quill and Scroll.

The National Chapter was founded in April, 1926, and due to the foresight and efforts of Mr. Heffner, Central received a charter in October, 1926. Central has gained many sister societies since our Quill and Scroll was organized, members of the society being formed all over the world.

This year the ten young journalists above were added to our membership. Three students admitted to membership last year are Merton Sealts, Billy Barndt, and Merrill DeVoe.

It is a real honor to belong to this society. Few of us realize just what it does mean, and just how much work must be accomplished to be initiated into the Quill and Scroll. The members must be of at least junior standing; they must be in the upper third of their class in general scholarship standing at the time of their election for the current year; they must have done superior work in some phase of journalistic or creative endeavor; they must be recommended by the supervisor by the committee governing publications, and finally, they must be approved by the national secretary-treasurer. Not withstanding their requirements, the candidate (from our school, at least) must give a speech at his or her initiation. Don't be discouraged; take heart! Some day you may be the proud wearer of a Quill and Scroll pin. Here's luck!

Debate

RESOLVED: That at least fifty per cent of all state and local taxes should be derived from sources other than tangible property.

CENTRAL High School's debate squad, member of the Ohio State Debating League for the last six years, achieved first honors in its debate district by maintaining a clean slate. Unfortunately, however, our team was defeated in its first debate in the state championship elimination trials by Columbus East, which later won second place in the state in the league.

On January 12 our affirmative team, debating at home, won a victory over Liberty Center. Our affirmative speakers were Mary Cutter, Bill Mereness, Merrill DeVoe, and Gene Heil, alternate.

Our negative team, composed of Ann Brazelton, William Barndt, Kent Leach, and Warren Lewis, alternate, defeated Marion Harding, at Marion, on the same day.

Bluffton, state champions of the league in 1932, met defeat at the hands of our negative team on the evening of January 26, in Central's auditorium, while the same evening our affirmative team traveled to Gibsonburg and scored a victory.

On the evening of February 2 our affirmative speakers won their third successive competition by defeating Fostoria. Our negative team, scheduled to debate Upper Sandusky the same evening, won its decision by forfeit.

Thus Central had a clean slate, having won all of her debates. However, up to this time Fremont was also undefeated, but, fortunately for Central, was eliminated from further competition in the Ohio State Debate League by Gibsonburg. Therefore the Central high school debate squad gained first place in the second district of the league.

Having won this honor, our debate team prepared to enter the state elimination contests, in which the winners of the eleven league districts participated. Our negative team, composed of Merrill DeVoe, Bill Barndt, and Kent Leach lost to the affirmative team of Columbus East high school at Columbus, on the afternoon of March 2. This defeat, the first of the season,

Heil Leach Lewis Means Mereness

eliminated Central from further competition in the state championship eliminations.

Central has always had an outstanding debate squad. Kent Leach, who was the third negative speaker, has been on the varsity team for three years. Many judges have complimented Kent for his excellent debating ability, especially in rebuttal.

The first affirmative speaker, Mary Cutter, has been outstanding in her effective presentation and delivery. Mary has debated on the varsity squad for two years without losing a debate—an unsurpassed record.

Merrill DeVoe, although a new member of the squad, has been highly praised by judges for his presentation, persuasion, delivery, and cleverness. Furthermore, Merrill has the distinction of being the only debater to speak on both sides of the question this season.

For many years to come, members of the squad will remember the debate season of 1932-33. Especially will they recall Ann Brazelton's pleasure trips, Merrill DeVoe's wit, Piqua's "Sallisbury Steaks", Stanley Boylan's Plymouth, Kent Leach's climaxing rebuttals, Miss Howey's Valentine party, the squad's photographs, the debate with Upper Sandusky, and the need of a persuasive voice!

Music at debates held at Central was furnished by vocal solos by Russell Chiles and Damon Sharrits, and selections by Central's mixed quartet and the Scrap Iron quartet.

Carolyn Means, acting as librarian for the squad, had charge of all debate material. Furthermore, Carolyn compiled a scrapbook containing all newspaper articles and programs of the year's debates.

Other members of the squad besides the speakers, alternates, and the librarian, were Charles Crosser, Bob Light, Hyla Butler, Margaret Reid, Charles Keil, George Countryman, and John Tillotson.

Due credit should be given to the faculty committee which ably coached the debate squad this year. This committee consisted of Mr. Stanley Boylan, chairman, Mrs. Gwen Jones Pence, and Miss Gayle Howey.

Boys seriously and earnestly debating important questions . . . boys imitating real senators as closely as possible . . . being more informal at times than they feel senators would ever be! . . . boys taking part in heated arguments . . . waging verbal fights so earnestly that they sound like deadly enemies . . . but somehow remaining friends regardless of differences in club periods . . . boys gaining a great deal of practical education and increasing their knowledge of current topics . . . that's the Senate!

TO encourage an interest in oratory and debate, to provide drill in parliamentary procedure, and to prepare students for participation in varsity debating, the Senate, the oldest parliamentary body of Central, was founded in 1916. In procedure and membership this organization is modeled as nearly as possible after the United States Senate.

Discussions on current topics and debates provided interesting and educational programs throughout the year. Among the questions discussed were the following: Should the United States Recognize Russia? What will be the Effect of 3.2 Beer? Should Military Training be Compulsory in School?

Controversies over the legality of procedure, motions, and actions of senators added excitement to the meetings. Senate members on Central's varsity debate team were Warren Lewis, Bill Mereness, and William Barndt.

In honor of the graduating members, a banquet, the final event of the year, was held.

Mr. Neiswander, new faculty advisor for the year, has given valuable guidance toward the development of parliamentary procedure and debate, and has contributed much toward making the Senate a laboratory for citizenship.

Ting-a-ling . . . "Say, you, you're late; just march over to the office, please" . . . "Basses, don't sing so much louder than the tenors. You drown them out" . . . "Piano, please!" . . . "Now, stop your silliness" . . . "I don't feel like singing today" . . . "If you tenors don't sing that right this time, you'll wish you were 'Down Among the Dead Men' instead of just singing it" . . . and that's forty-five minutes of Boys' Glee!

THE Boys' Glee club, which was organized in 1915, comprises one of the most important activities of the school. This organization meets on Wednesday during the sixth period, but on Monday, Thursday, and Friday, it meets with the Girls' Glee club, under the able leadership of Mr. Mark Evans. The club consists of about thirty-six boys who are chosen by means of tryouts at the beginning of the year.

The most important event for this group is the annual vocal Eisteddfod, which was held this year in Lima, on April twenty-first. The number on which the boys contested was "Down Among the Dead Men", an old English air. The male quartet and three soloists from the Glee club also represented Central in this vocal contest.

The ever popular male quartet consisted of James Miller, Harry Hadsell, Kent Leach, and Martin Winemiller. These boys have sung many times at school functions and have often been requested to entertain at outside affairs. Two of their most popular numbers were "Shortin' Bread" and "Keep in the Middle of the Road."

"Gee, we had fun when—oh, why couldn't he wait a minute to start?" . . . "Say, sound as if you really believe he loved her. You sing like a bunch of wilted water-lilies!" . . . (sigh) "I don't feel like singing those old songs anyhow" . . . "Sopranos, you're a half-step flat, altos a half-step sharp, and altogether you sound terrible!" . . . "Stop, your nonsense now, everybody, and sing" . . . and that's a period of Girls' Glee!

THE Girls' Glee club, one of Central's oldest clubs, was organized in 1914. Just its membership alone proves its popularity, the club consisting of about sixty members who are chosen at the beginning of the year through tryouts conducted by Mr. Evans. This organization meets on Tuesday during the sixth period, and also with the Boys' Glee club on Monday, Thursday, and Friday.

Like the Boys', the Girls' Glee club considers the annual vocal Eisteddfod a most important event. This year the contest was held in Lima, on April twenty-first. The girls competed with glee clubs from Marion and Defiance. The number which the girls sang in this ever important event was the beautiful selection, "A Snow Legend," by Clokey. Central was also represented by smaller groups of singers and solists chosen from this organization, including the girls' duet, the soprano, alto, and piano solos, and the mixed quartet.

This year the school had two mixed quartets made up of members of both glee clubs. One consisted of Dorothy Day, Louise Wimmer, Russell Chiles, and Charles Wilson; the other, of Evelyn Price, Helen Barrington, James Miller, Damon Sharrits. Both groups have sung at school and at outside functions.

Where's your clarinet? This is a fine time to have something wrong with it . . . Now, second violins, you must learn to balance your tone volume with the firsts . . . Start at Z and listen to the solo . . . Trumpets, will you stop jabbering and get busy? It's only three weeks till we play . . . That was fine, flute . . . Pass in your music, everyone . . . Oh, there's the bell! . . . and that's a period of orchestra rehearsal!

THE senior orchestra, which was founded twenty-three years ago, did not become an important activity until its rehearsals became a part of the school curriculum. Since then it has rapidly risen in importance. The orchestra is made up of about forty of the more advanced instrumentalists of Central High school. This organization meets three periods a week, and through the efficient leadership of Mr. Mark Evans, has shown a marked gain in proficiency during the past year.

The Eisteddfod, the most important activity participated in during the orchestral year, was held at Marion on March twenty-fourth. There Central's musicians competed with those from Bluffton, Findlay, and Fostoria. The orchestra's number for competition was "A Life for the Czar", by Glinka, a modern composition just recently released from the press.

Central was also represented in the instrumental Eisteddfod by two smaller groups, the string and brass ensembles, and by the band. The string ensemble, played "Intermezzo Sinfonice," by Petri Mascagni, and carried off first honors.

The brass ensemble played "Alice, Where Art Thou?" by Lake. This took third place, as did the band.

The orchestra has also provided entertainment at plays, at senior and junior assemblies, and at outside functions.

O-o-o-h—tryouts today! Why do we have to have such things? I'm kinda scared . . . Get tuned up now. Can't you hear that's about a half step off? . . . Saxaphones, we're playing classical music, not jazz . . . Now you people listen to these tryouts and give an honest-to-goodness decision as to who deserves what place. It's almost time for the bell and there's no time to waste . . . There! Tryouts over for another week!

THE junior orchestra, which has a membership of about thirty musicians is one of the newer organizations of Central, and may be called a beginners' orchestra due to the fact that it consists of the younger and less experienced musicians of the school. Its purpose is to give the students a chance to display their talents, to develop their ability to play and read music, to gain a keen sense of rhythm and pitch, and to learn to appreciate the finer and more complicated types of music. The students are also taught the fundamentals of the arrangement and instrumentation of the modern orchestra, and are trained to play the instruments which are most needed in the senior orchestra. All these things prove of great value if the young musicians continue their interest in such a line of work, for when they have made noticeable progress they are placed in the senior orchestra.

This organization, which is not permitted to enter the Eisteddfod, is very seldom heard in public performances, the orchestra's purpose not being to prepare for and make public appearances, but to prepare its members for a higher group of instrumentalists which are better trained for outside activities. As has been the custom in previous years, its only appearance this year was at the presentation of the junior high play.

College Field some hazy autumn day . . . excited crowds cheering . . . people scurrying around during the half . . . and amidst it all, a flash of color, the roll of drums . . . boys and girls in red and green, marching onto the field of battle . . . the drum major strutting his stuff, waving and tossing his baton . . . all forming a "C", breaking into the glorious hattle song, with an accompaniment of lusty young voices . . . marching around the gridiron, wildly cheered at . . . that's the band!

COMPOSED of forty members, Central's band this year was under the direction of Mr. Mark Evans. The band, which met during the first period on Tuesdays and Thursdays, was, without a doubt, the busiest of all our musical organizations, playing at all football and basketball games, at some of the Lyceum numbers, in assemblies, and in the various patriotic parades. This year it also participated in the annual Eisteddfod held at Marion.

Usually before a student can become a member of the band he must have played first in the junior band, which met after school on Fridays. Thus the junior band was a recruiting station for the senior band.

The band's purpose is primarily, of course, to train young people in the art and appreciation of band music; however, the friendships formed among the fellows during the entire year of working and playing together, far outweigh any other values received.

TO further interest in clean, wholesome dramatics is the aim of the Troubadourian club, Central's advanced dramatic society, made one of the school's most outstanding clubs by the ability and patience of Mrs. Rhonemus. A short interesting play, in which each club member acts at some time during the year, is staged at each bimonthly meeting. The directors, who select their play and direct it, are also chosen from the club.

The Troubadours' scrap book, supervised by Maxine Mayer and Helen Noonan, is a very valuable book in which are compiled the topics pertaining to the club.

A great deal of unusual dramatic attitude is brought forth in the annual tryouts, and only the boys and girls with outstanding ability are accepted. However, one needs to be accepted only once—once a Troubadourian, always a Troubadourian!

RAPIDLY growing in popularity and dramatic talent is the Masqueraders club. It was founded in 1924 to promote interest in dramatic entertainment, and has proved to be highly successful under Miss Stuart's competent supervision.

Two meetings are held each month, one of which is devoted to the presentation of one-act plays directed by club members. A program committee selects the plays and supervise their presentation. This year, however, some of the club members wrote and produced their own plays, which is something that has never been done before. The other meeting of the month was used for lectures or instructive talks concerning drama. Well-known local speakers in dramatic art were obtained for this purpose, which proved to be highly beneficial.

THE Troubadours again offered as their annual play a highly successful mystery drama. This year it was "Spooks", by Robert J. Sherman. And didn't the play and the actors live up exceedingly well to the title? It was necessary that four cousins—Elliott Butterfield, Marian Blackwell, Douglas Blackwell, and Laurette Payne—stay in a weird and gloomy house for three successive days and nights, in order to inherit anything from the estate of an old relative, the former owner of the house. All sorts of mysterious incidents occurred during their stay. Most blood-curdling of all were the mysterious deaths of two characters, Inspector Ryan and Silas Willoby (in which role Charles Condit, finest of actors, added much to the horror of the play). Paul Crosser, as Douglas Blackwell, also did an unusually good piece of acting, his stuttering supplying much of the humor. Each of the players carried his role splendidly.

This play introduced an entirely different characteristic, that of having the actors enter the stage from the audience, which proved very interesting.

The producing staff were Marjorie Zimmermann, as business manager, and Mary Cutter, as property manager. "Spooks", no doubt the most successful Troubadourian play ever produced, was capably directed by Mrs. Jessie Rhonemus.

THE Masqueraders presented as their annual play "The Nut Farm", a highly entertaining three-act comedy farce by John C. Brownell. The plot concerned the crisis in the lives of Helen Bent, her husband, mother, and brother, all residing in Hollywood, when she believed herself to be a marvelous actress, destined to fame and fortune on the silver screen. Flattered and deceived by Hamilton T. Holland, supposedly a movie magnate but in reality a swindler, she nearly wrecked the happiness and fortunes of her husband, whose life savings would be necessary to launch her upon her "glorious career." Her mother falls in with her ambitions, but Willie, the black sheep of the Barton family, is very much opposed to Mr. Hamilton.

Disaster, however, is fortunately averted at the very end by Willie's efforts. The romantic interest was furnished by the love affair of Willie and Agatha, while Helen, Willie, and Clarence J. Biddeford supplied most of the humor. Who can forget Helen's antics before the mirror, Willie's jokes, or Biddeford's scenario reading?

The play was ably directed by Miss Jeannette Stuart, who manages to make each of her plays better than the last. Mary Jane Gregg and Harriet Solomon were property and business managers, respectively.

THE junior class of 1933 scored again in the history of junior class plays when it presented the farce comedy, "Where There's a Will", by Charles George.

To what lengths will a domineering woman go to gain the fortune left to her relatives? The play showed us the scheming tactics used by Mrs. Emerson to achieve her ambitions, by fair means or foul. An exasperating colored maid did much toward providing the hilarity of the comedy, and there were, of course, the inevitable love-interest tangles. Jealousy was aroused among the three girls—Linda, Sylvia, and Jane—when their suitors became dazzled by the fortune inherited by Lorna Keith, Linda's queer cousin. All this was happily straightened out after many amusing events, and, to top the excitement of the closing scene, the hen-pecked husband came into his own, turning like the proverbial worm to command the obeisance of his wife.

The executive staff was composed of Eleanor Stiles, business manager; Mary Porter, property manager, and Mrs. Jessie Rhonemus, the capable director of all junior class plays.

CENTRAL Junior High school side-stepped from its usual operetta this year and offered us a cleverly enacted play, "Rescued by Radio", by Lindsey Barber. It concerned the mysterious and exciting events at Madge Haynes' gay house party. Her guests, all of whom were craving adventure, were listening to the radio when they heard the report of the disappearance of John Burton, a wealthy railroad man. The boys and girls just then heard a strange moaning, and the boys left to investigate. While they were gone and the girls were talking amicably among themselves, a strange girl appeared. The boys returned with an unknown young man, and, because of bulletins they have just heard over the radio, the guests suspect the strangers of being the kidnappers and the escaped lunatic. Turning to the radio for further information, they cut in upon a stray message, "Crag's Head Eleven", which sent them on an investigation tour, resulting in a thrilling and surprising conclusion.

The play was directed by Miss Jeannette Stuart, and the dances were supervised by Miss Lyda Buchanan. All the characters were seventh and eighth graders, and even the assistant stage manager was a junior high pupil, Richard Courtney.

Central's Trophies

JUST inside the well-known front doors—Central's main entrance, that is—stand two large trophy cases. We've seen countless numbers of girls look into them every day, but as they always seem interested in a shiny nose or putting on a hat, we're afraid they're never really looked at the trophies themselves! Well, let's open those doors and see what stories of victories and achievements we can unearth by examining the many beautiful trophies.

FOOTBALL

A fine silver trophy, awarded by the alumni of the University of Michigan, calls to mind the winning of three consecutive games with South.

Basinger's jewelry store donated a statuette in honor of the Dragons' 12-0 defeat over South on Turkey Day in 1924.

In 1918 Bluffton College awarded the Red and Green team a trophy for capturing first place in the football tournament that year.

BASKETBALL

This year the Central basketeers went over to Ada and carried off the honors in the Class A sectional tourney. For this feat Ohio Northern University awarded us a very beautiful silver trophy.

Our victories at the Class A sectional tournament of 1932, held at Kenton, are marked by a trophy donated by the Kenton Kiwanis club.

In 1931, that year in Central's basketball history memorable for advancing to the state semi-finals, the Lima Kiwanis club gave a very beautiful trophy for our victories in the sectional meet at South, while the alumni of Renasslaer Polytechnic Institute of Troy, New York, presented Central a plaque for winning the district championship.

TRACK

In 1925 the Lima News awarded our tracksters a lovely silver cup for winning the Class A championship.

The Piqua Rotary club awarded to Central's track team of 1926 a trophy designating them as the winners of the western Ohio track meet of that year.

For the Class A district championships in 1927 and 1928, we received trophies from Ohio Northern University.

MUSIC

Another silver cup, awarded by Findlay, Ohio, shows that Central musicians took second place in the annual Eisteddfod of 1929.

This year our orchestra took second place in the Eisteddfod at Marion, and was rewarded with a silver cup.

DEBATE

In 1927 Ohio Wesleyan University gave us a lovely silver cup for winning the third State High School Extempore Speaking Contest.

SCHOLARSHIP

High scholarship among Central students is encouraged by the traditional silver cup, donated by the senior class every ten years from 1922, on which is engraved the name of the honor student of each year's graduating class. Last year's class presented a very beautiful cup for this purpose.

Seriously minded boys earnestly discussing problems—not just their own, but other young peoples' . . . trying to solve them the best way . . . boys endeavoring to lead clean lives and to live up to Christ's ideals . . . boys attempting to make Central life more democratic . . . climbing steadily toward this goal by helping to secure school dances for Central . . . fun-loving boys being jolly and informal as often as they are serious and formal . . . that's Senior Hi-Y!

THE world seems to require the existence of organizations and clubs. Some serve a valuable purpose, others are not so useful, while there are some whose disadvantages may be said to outweigh their advantages. The Hi-Y club can rightly be classed in the first group, for it is an asset both to Central and the entire community. Its purpose is the creation, maintenance, and extension throughout the school and community of high standards of Christian living.

In its attempt to foster a spirit of cooperation and good-will among Central students, the Hi-Y showed the great need for and furthered the cause of social functions within the school, so that the students need not go outside the school to lead a normal social life.

Stressing the vital necessity of clean speech, clean habits, clean scholarship, and clean sportsmanship in a clean life, the Hi-Y and the Blue Triangle conducted their annual Four C's campaign and Sunday Forums with great success.

The Hi-Y wishes to express its deepest thanks for the splendid services rendered by Mr. Overmire and Mr. Steiner, who have contributed much to the year's success.

Young boys just entering high school, trying to mold their lives in the cleanest way possible . . . learning the ideals and standards of the Hi-Y and the Y. M. C. A. . . . boys training themselves for the senior club . . . cooperating with the senior organization in all its projects—Forums, Four C's Campaign, Conferences . . . boys discussing the problems of the youth of their age, seeking to solve everything the right way . . . having jolly fun-nights and parties, too . . . that's the Junior Hi-Y.

WITH the same high standards of Christian living, the same lofty ideals, and the same inspiring purpose as the senior organization, the Junior Hi-Y is composed of boys from the freshman and sophomore classes.

The members of this club, through its activities, receive training for the Senior Hi-Y, and are thus able to understand more readily the aims and standards of that club when they go into it.

During the course of the meetings very interesting addresses were given, problems and questions pertinent to the modern American youth were discussed, and a fun night was enjoyed once every month.

The Hi-Y clubs of Lima were hosts, as a whole, to several hundred club members in this section of the state at the annual spring training conferences

Several representatives of the Junior Hi-Y attended the Older Boys' Conference at Columbus, bringing back much valuable information concerning the problems of today's youth.

The Junior Hi-Y was very fortunate in having as advisors two highly capable men, Rev. I. C. Paul and Coach B. W. Hughes.

A group of girls sewing busily, foreheads puckered as a thread becomes knotted or something doesn't fit . . . girls studying welfare problems, trying to lessen the pressing need for wearing apparel for the needy . . . laughing at somebody's joke or at a humorous incident . . . girls learning how to shop efficiently, studying home-making . . . girls discussing clothes—how to make and wear them . . . deriving benefits which will serve them all their lives . . . that's the Home Economics Club!

BEING a comparative new organization (only two years old), we feel sure there are many students who are unaware of the fine work that the Home Economics club is accomplishing.

Its main purpose—to aid the city in public welfare work—is certainly an excellent one. As the club's first welfare project, the girls gave their time and energy to help the Christmas Mother. They made a large number of cunning rag dolls, which certainly brought delight to many a poor child on Christmas day. (Remember when one of the downtown stores displayed all those cute dolls of every conceivable size, shape, and color? Perhaps you didn't know they were the handiwork of our own Home Economics club.)

The girls also gave their aid to the Red Cross making not only women's and children's dresses, but men's shirts as well. In doing all these things, the girls gained very valuable experience by which they will always profit.

After the problem of caring for needy families was satisfactorily completed, the club members, seeking something both interesting and educational, visited the various factories and manufacturing plants in Lima.

Under Miss Phyllis Mendenhall's able supervision, the club has made great progress this year. Its scope is a wide one, and the girls do every phase of it very capably.

Aspiring young artists busy in the task of beautifying the back wall of the stage . . . importantly dipping brushes into numerous cans of paint . . . amateurs succeeding in making the landscape of their handiwork look like the product of professionals . . . girls timidly working from a precarious perch on the scaffold . . . green, blue, brown, orange, gold, and white blending into a lovely woodland scene . . . everyone working enthusiastically, laughing and talking happily . . . that's the Art Club!

ART—a small word that signifies a good deal and assuredly does its bit in brightening the drab existence of humanity. Realizing that Central students are a part of this humanity, the Art club has striven, since the year of its birth in 1919, for a fuller appreciation of every-day art. It is difficult for a small group to accomplish this, especially among high school students, because they have so little time in which to develop an appreciation of art.

This year, however, the club feels that it has succeeded somewhat in attracting the attention and the artistic sense of the student body by carrying out an unusual program, namely the painting of a landscape on the back wall of the stage. The entire club took part in all phases of the project, sponsored by Mrs. Estella Burrell, supervisor of the Fine Arts Department in the Lima schools. At its completion the painting was presented to the school during an assembly, and, judging by the "oh's" and "ah's", the undertaking was a great success.

The remainder of the year was spent with each individual working in whatever line he chose. In the spring, an outdoor meeting was enjoyed for the purpose of sketching. The club feels that it has completed an altogether successful year.

Boys and girls studying the vital problem of higher education . . . asking all sorts of questions about all sorts of colleges . . . studying catalogues, giving reports, encouraging discussion and questions . . . speakers showing the advantages one kind of college has over another . . . pointing out the disadvantages of some other institution . . . boys and girls receiving badly needed and much appreciated comments and suggestions . . . that's the Educational Guidance Club!

TO give the students a better and more detailed knowledge of the various colleges and universities in the United States, and to cultivate a better understanding of college life in general—that is the purpose of the Educational Guidance club, organized four years ago as the Pre-College club.

Under the able supervision of J. G. Crites, the club accomplishes its purpose by studying college catalogues to obtain accurate and up-to-date information concerning the many colleges. The students also discuss many questions pertaining to college life, such as the advantages or disadvantages of a large school over a small one, of a fraternal school over a non-fraternal one, or of a state school over a private one. Many similar questions concerning cost, opportunities, and college life in general are discussed.

At various meetings, outside speakers have given the members many helpful talks and suggestions upon some phase of this all-important question of higher education.

Information obtained by one member is reported to the club as a whole. Each student is given a chance to ask any question concerning the college in which he is interested.

Although the membership is not very large, we hope that it will greatly increase in the future, for the matter of choosing a college is one in which practically every pupil is interested.

Young people studying the functions of the business and commercial worlds of today . . . garnering valuable information about things vitally concerning business . . . young people studying office equipment . . . learning the use of the mimeograph, the comptometer, the adding machine . . . presenting clever skits and plays concerning topics peritent to business . . . boys and girls understanding more fully than before the complexities of business life . . . that's the Commercial Club!

THE Commercial club, sponsored by C. R. De Long and Mrs. Norma D. Swearingen, is an organization whose purpose is to bring the commercial department of Central in closer contact with conditions of the modern business world. Any pupil taking commercial subjects is eligible for membership, and is urged to profit by this advantage. Practically all of us expect to belong to the business world, and certainly it will be much in our favor to know something about it and how it functions.

The programs, which are filled to the brim with enjoyable, educational subjects, included talks by business men on valuable topics such as banking, modern office machines and equipment, and business relations. Club members and teachers provided added interest to the programs with plays, music, selling skits, office calling, telephoning, and contests in typewriting, shorthand, spelling, and commercial arithmetic.

An outstanding feature of the year was the club's annual party, which was held at Mr. DeLong's cottage at Island View. Outdoor games, fishing, boating, and swimming were enjoyed by all.

Every member and the two supervisors deserve much credit for their interesting efforts in helping to make the club a successful one.

THE third year of the Library club's existence finds it still a great benefit and a helpful element to those who have chosen this line of work as their career. Only those who are really interested in library work are considered or made members of the club. Its purpose is to educate and train prospective librarians in all the sciences of book lore and its accompanying facilities.

The club met every other week in the school library. Its meetings were devoted to the study of the care and handling of books, their classification and grouping, their distribution, the method of shelving them, and anything which pertains to their use in the library. Each member of the club was given her opportunity to work in the library for a period of time to show what she had learned about library work during the year.

Each year a Book Week has been held under the sponsorship of the Library club, during which time its members take charge of the library and exhibit its books.

In addition to its regular meetings this year, the girls held a clever treasure hunt, the clues and treasures being hidden in books throughout the library.

The club ended its season with a May Day tea, an event which was eagerly looked forward to and very much enjoyed.

The Library club has proved very successful under the careful supervision of Miss Reilly, and its work is expected to continue to be an attraction and help for next year's members.

Young athletes proudly wearing the coveted "C" . . . each of them having as his aim the promotion of clean sportsmanship . . . doing nothing which might bring disgrace to his "C" or to the name of Central . . . advocating fair play only . . . boys who, being the heroes of younger boys and the pattern for many a student's life, try to live up to high standards deserving of this idealism . . . that's the "C" Association.

"C" ASSOCIATION—the ultimate goal of every Central athlete. Founded in 1922, this organization has since become an important part of Central's activities. C. C. Steward and H. W. Scheuerman were the faculty advisors this year.

The club was entirely reorganized this year and a new constitution, drawn up by Mr. Scheuerman, was adopted. Under this new plan, members were required to be eligible in scholastic standing as well as in athletics. Three different committees were formed. One, the emergency committee, dealt with any emergency that might arise; the inter-school relations committee performed the duty of welcoming visiting teams, while the club's social affairs were supervised by a committee devoted to this purpose.

Cooperating with the faculty and the athletic association in raising funds for spring sports, the "C" Association played the girls in a comedy game on the night of the faculty-varsity basketball contest and entertained the student body with the most hilarious demonstration ever witnessed.

The wearers of the "C" may rest assured that they have made this year's "C" Association the most satisfactory one Central has ever had.

Corridor Patrol

Students maintaining order in the halls . . . keeping a clear passage through the center of the corridors . . . encouraging clean, tidy halls free from paper . . . discouraging unnecessary noise and disorder . . . establishing a courtesy monitor system . . . giving information about Central to its visitors . . . trying to be helpful in every way . . . that's the Corridor Patrol!

IN order to alleviate noise and confusion in the halls during the mixer period in the morning and at noon, the corridor patrol was organized by the Student Council. The last two years have proved its success, showing the method with which the plan has been carried on to be a very commendable one.

Three pupils, selected from the student body at large, were on duty on each floor. Coming into the building several minutes before the bell for admission, they kept a clear passageway through the center of the halls until the tardy bell rang.

The students were also in charge of the drinking fountains and saw that lockers were locked and that the halls were kept free from paper.

Meetings of the patrol were held on the first and third Mondays of each school month. Each student participated, giving a review of some of his problems of the foregoing week. Helpful suggestions were then offered by J. G. Crites, faculty advisor, or by Jo Steiner, Student Council representative.

Much credit is due the Student Council for putting into execution this patrol service for the school. In his effort to benefit this group, the hearty co-operation on the part of J. G. Crites was greatly appreciated.

Boys directing traffic . . . making the streets around Central safe for students and motorists . . . skillfully lessening congestions . . . boys braving snow, rain, and sub-zero weather to do their duty . . . commanding every driver's and pedestrian's respect for their capability . . . boys doing their best to prevent accidents, trying to protect lives . . . that's the Street Patrol!

SEVERAL years ago, when the traffic situation in the vicinity of Central presented some difficult problems, the student street patrol was organized.

This year twenty-four boys willingly contributed their services to the aiding of traffic control at the beginning and dismissal of classes on each school day. The success with which they carried out their duties was very marked, and they are to be highly commended for their excellent work. In doing this work, these boys have served a double purpose, namely, the increased safety for motorists and students using the intersections, and the remarkable lessening of traffic congestions. Often in rainy weather, the patrolmen had real jobs on their hands in taking care of the heavy traffic.

Meetings of the patrol members were held on the first and third Mondays of each month to discuss various questions dealing with traffic control, and to treat cases which arose in their line of duty. The group also sponsored several enjoyable social functions during the school year

Pins recognizing the boys' efficient service to the school were awarded at the close of the year by Principal H. W. Leach.

J. G. Crites, faculty advisor to the group, has rendered highly valuable help to the patrol; his aid has been greatly appreciated. William Barndt and Charles Eckert were the representatives from the Student Council to the patrol.

Smiling, friendly girls in a homogeneous group . . . a helpful instructor guiding them in social instincts . . . one girl giving a report on manners for the modern young lady . . . another rendering advice to an angry girl, advocating emotional balance and self-control . . . a group discussion on grace and poise . . . a motherly little person settling questions which are puzzling her girls . . . leading them step by step on the road to poise and charm . . . that's the Charm Club!

"THE Charm Club" is the new name given to the organization formerly known as the Citizenship club. The change was made due to the fact that the word "citizenship" had proved misleading, causing the girls to think that it was a club discussing questions of government and citizenship. This has not been the case, the real purpose of the club being the discussion of such questions of ideals, life, and conduct, which lie nearest to girls' hearts, and the attempt to remedy those problems which a girl faces in her associations with her own father and mother, her brothers and sisters, her schoolmates, and her church and social relationships.

Under the competent supervision of Miss Deputy, reports have been prepared and delivered at the meetings on subjects such as etiquette for the modern girl, the way to acquire grace and poise, personality development, and the great importance of emotional balance.

The aim of the club has been to present such ideals and rules of conduct as to make every girl charming and at ease in the fullest sense of the word; to give her poise and self-confidence in any company or situation; to suggest such social graces as will make her attractive, queenly, and lovely in all her social relationships, and to create in her such ideals of conduct as will fit her for leadership and the best things in life.

Steam rising from a beaker . . . something boiling merrily away in a flask . . . heads bending anxiously over a test-tube . . . some queer substance being carefully weighed and tested . . . crash! a broken test-tube . . . five cents, please . . . try it again, boys . . . some boys carefully erecting a structure of test-tube holder, wire screen, Bunsen burner, and innumerable other queer-looking things . . . attentive watchers . . . Miss Richey supervising all . . . that's the Chemistry Club!

DID you know that dear old Central high school has been in weekly danger of being blown to bits? The Chemistry club, under the able supervision of Miss Richey, has been meeting every week this year. The members certainly must be fond of chemistry!

The club was organized last year at the request of several boys interested in chemical knowledge, the meetings then being held every two weeks, but with the new organization this fall they planned to hold meetings each week in order to promote more project work. It was also decided to limit the membership to those having had one year of science or showing high scholarship with exceptional interest in science, particularly chemistry.

Each week the members have been performing experiments, those which are not usually done in the chemistry classes. Two people are responsible each time for the presentation of the discussion, experimentation, and reports.

Although we know beyond the shadow of any doubt that Miss Richey knows her chemistry, and that the members of the club would not maliciously plan to perform any disastrous experiments, we still have fears for the safety of our Alma Mater. Imagine the embarrassment of a Chemistry club member to find himself holding a broken test-tube, standing in the midst of the smouldering ruins of Central!

Best of luck, chemists!

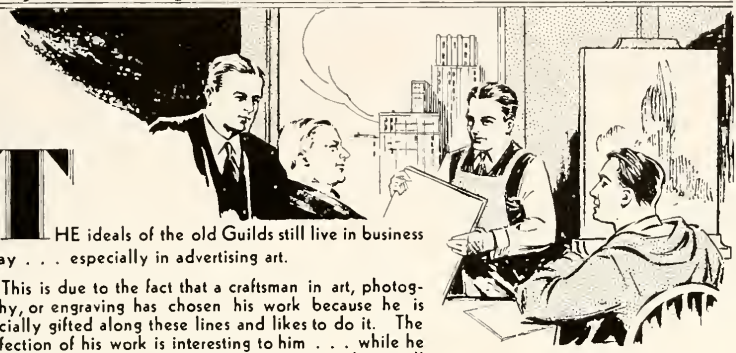
A Guild of CRAFTSMEN



THE ideals of the old Guilds still live in business today . . . especially in advertising art.

This is due to the fact that a craftsman in art, photography, or engraving has chosen his work because he is specially gifted along these lines and likes to do it. The perfection of his work is interesting to him . . . while he earns a salary, his greatest compensation comes from well earned praise of those for whom he is working.

The associates of The Lima Photo Engraving Company are, in reality, a Guild of Craftsmen. No client of ours has been more interested in his publicity than have those who have taken a part in creating the advertising art for his campaign.

Every day, visitors to our company see groups of interested men planning the best method of presenting a product in pictorial form. This working together on the part of our associates accounts, to a large extent, for the success we have enjoyed and the fine comments given us by our clients.

We feel that every order given us is to be performed, not only to our client's satisfaction, but also in accordance with the high standards of workmanship we have set for ourselves.

May we work with you in making your advertising Pictorially Correct? Our representative will call at no obligation.

Helen Wolf: A man walking a mile and yet only moving two feet.

Miss Loe: (reading Algebra answers) The next answer is $4,500,000. How many have that?

Katy Zimmerman: Say, what do you take us for, millionaires?

Alice Bacome: Where do all the flies come from?

Ned Clarkson: Well, the cyclone makes the house fly, the blacksmith makes the fire fly, the hockey makes the horse fly, and children makes the butter fly.

Mr. Evans: What is the motive in that composition of Tzychinosky's I just played?

Merrill DeVoe: Sounded like revenge.

Amelia Wolock: There are several things I can always count on.

Muriel Martin: What are they?

Amelia: My fingers.

Mr. Steiner: I distinctly heard someone prompting you.

Clinton Lay: That was just history repeating itself.

Charles Crosser: Do you like moving pictures?

Don Paul: Sure.

Charles: Well then help me move some pictures down from the attic.

Miss Watson: You dirty boy, you. Why don't you wash your face? I can see what you had for breakfast this morning.

Tom Sawyer: What was it?

Miss Watson: Eggs.

Tom: Wrong. That was yesterday morning.

Scrub--Scrub--Scrub!

Backs broken! Fingers worn to the bone! It wasn't so long ago that a picture of a woman bent over a washboard was the accepted method of portraying the endless toil of woman's "18-hour-day." Today the magic of electricity has taken the drudgery out of wash-day —and out of other days, too! Electricity eliminates household drudgery—and for only a few cents a day.

Mr. Fisher: "My boy has a wonderful ear for music.

Mr. Miller: Perhaps, but he doesn't play music with his ears.

Various words were being defined by the class.

Finally, the teacher turned to Johnny and asked, "What is velocity?"

"Velocity is what a fellow lets go of a bee with," promptly replied Betty Sloan.

ATHLETES WITH A KICK

Ants, we read, can lift weights which are tremendous as compared with their own. Wasps also can raise quite good-sized lumps.

Elizabeth Baxter: What is a vacuum?

Thomas J.: I have it in my head, but I can't think of it just now.

Howard Early: I used to snore so loud, I'd wake myself up, but I cured myself.

Rus Brown: How?

Howard: I sleep in the next room.

Betty Smith: What's your objection to hiking?

Irene Reigal: I think they put the milestones too far apart.

"Hm — that's funny! Where have I seen this mug before!" murmured the absent-minded burglar as he crawled under his own bed

---

"I'm sorry, darling, but I can't kiss you any more. The doctor says I have trenchmouth."

"Oh, Horatio! You modest hero! Why didn't you tell me you'd been a soldier?"

George CaJacob: Would you like to do the elevator dance?

Maxine Mayer: I'd love to. How does it go?

George: There are no steps to it.

First Cannibal: What's the matter with me, doc? I feel mighty sick.

Cannibal Doc.: What'd you have for dinner?

First Cannibal: A gangster.

Cannibal Doc.: Lead poisoning!

Yes, there's a terrible surplus of wheat in this country, but it could be worse. It could be spinach.

Miss McClurg: In which of his battles was Alexander the Great killed?

Phil Kline: I think it was the last.

Helen Sproul: An eastern Rajah is said to have a bed 12 feet long and 7 feet wide.

Mary H. Tompson: That's a lot of bunk.

Miss Faris: What's the matter, Merton? You look worried.

Merton: Oh, Christmas is coming.

Miss Faris: Oh, so you're thinking of the future.

Merton: Oh, no—it's the present that bothers me!

A traffic cop at a busy corner saw an old lady beckon to him one afternoon. He held up a dozen autos, a truck, and two taxis to get to her side.

"What is it?" he asked impatiently.

The old lady smiled. "Officer," she said in a soft voice, "I just wanted to tell you that your number is the number of my favorite hymn."

"I guess I've lost another pupil," said the professor as his glass eye rolled down the kitchen sink.

Uncle: Was Henry home from college during the Christmas holidays?

Father: Either that or someone else borrowed the car for two weeks.

A small boy returned home, triumphantly carrying a book he had won in school that day.

"And you won it for knowing zoology?" asked his mother. "You are awfully young to know any zoology."

"Well, teacher asked how many legs an ostrich had, and I said three."

"But an ostrich has only two, son."

"I know it, but the other kids said four!"

Is There a Future for You in Business?

Income tax figures show that the largest earnings are made in business vocations — bankers, manufacturers, merchants, accountants, private secretaries, etc.

These positions are often won by young men and young women who show ability in minor office positions.

The Northwestern School of Commerce prepares you for a starting position in business, as stenographer, bookkeeper, or assistant—where the "lightning of promotion" is likely to strike.

Further information, explaining how you can prepare for the opportunities in business, and how our Employment Department assists graduates in getting started, will gladly be sent to you on request, entirely without obligation.
